Reliable Transmission first and foremost wishes to thank you for your patronage. Warranty terms are for whichever comes first, 24 months or 24 thousand miles. In order to validate your warranty your vehicle needs to be re-inspected between 7-14 days. Please check under your vehicle frequently for any fluid leaks. A little bit of caution can save you and me considerable time and money. If you are experiencing any concerns please contact me so we may cure a small problem before it becomes a large one. In order to prolong the life of your newly rebuilt or replaced unit I strongly recommend changing your fluid more frequently than your service schedule recommends. I like 30k intervals. Fluids are complex ingredients that work to dissipate heat, inhibit corrosion and lubricate your internal parts. Warranty excludes electrical, mechanical or operator error incidents either contributing to or causing a rebuilt unit to fail. Some examples are in part, TV cable, solenoids, computer, sensors, wiring, fluid loss, incorrect fluids, water ingestion, anti-freeze ingestion, abuse, flex plate, flywheel, clutch, cover, drive shaft or u-joints, unit modification, wiring modification, crankshaft bearing failure or breakage, cooler flow loss, loss of fluid from punctures, differentials. Broken internals may not be covered if I determine incorrect operating conditions caused your unit to fail. Slipping your wheels on a slippery surface may cause the innards to break when sudden traction is attained. Failures of this type are evident upon disassembly. Reliable Transmission assumes no responsibility for tow-ins claiming warranty or non-warranty failures. Reliable Transmission reserves final judgment as to warranty or non-warranty. Unit must be in the vehicle it was originally invoiced for. We are in business for the long term which means our reputation is valued above all. I rarely invalidate a contract. Not responsible for incidental or coincidental losses. Not responsible for hub cap loss. Hub caps become weak with age and may fall off at any time. Unauthorized repair work may void your warranty. The customer also agrees to allow Reliable Transmission every attempt to repair their car. No request for a charge back shall be requested if work is paid for with a credit card. Warranty costs may not exceed the invoiced amount. Warranty covers original purchaser only.
